

Civilization on Saturn

By, Jeffin Xavier

It was 2087. It was a very sunny day. The news said that it was going to be very sunny for the whole week. But a lot of people were not happy about this sunny weather. It was sunny for almost 5 years now and there wasn't a drop of rain on the ground. In fact the winter seemed almost like summer. There was no snow on the ground either. It also seemed like the order of all the seasons were rearranged. Almost no one was outside because the temperature was 145 degrees Fahrenheit. All of the people were inside and they never came outside for anything. There were almost no trees and no plants.

One night however, when it was unusually cold, a comet was seen in the sky, then a few more, and then the only thing to see were comets. The comets gathered in a circle formation and then waited for a few minutes. Then all of a sudden the comets flew in all different directions spreading throughout the skies. One comet came toward our location. The comet flew with amazing speed and it was very aerodynamic. With one swoosh it came down and hovered over our town. Amazing. Then all the people that were sitting in their houses were coming outside. Some people had an extremely confused look as if they were never there. A lot of our folk never came outside because of the extreme weather. Then all of the people of the town, even the mayor in his pajamas and with a teddy bear came outside. Then the comet suddenly landed on the ground.

The comet was huge. It took the length of almost three houses. There on the side of the comet I found a mini door and I opened it. There was a paper that was in a cylinder shape with a ribbon tied onto it. Then people started to notice me and they started to come to me. Then when almost everybody was near me watching I suddenly noticed the mayor of the town. He told me to announce to everybody what I just found inside the comet. So I read what it said.

Dear Earthlings:

My name is Emperor Saturn and I am the Emperor of Saturn. I have sent these comets as ride for you to Saturn. To activate this comet simply press the button that is on the head of the comet. Then the next step will be for one of you to hold on to the tail of the comet and then two people will hold on to his two legs and so on. Be sure to hold on tight because the journey is tough. Some of you may not make it to my planet. That's all you have to do. Good riddance.

Then I closed the letter. Then the mayor informed everybody what to do. Then we got into our formation and the comet blasted off. We just opened our eyes and we were just out of the earth's atmosphere. Man, this comet was going fast. We waited for a few more hours and then the comet flew out of my hands and we flew down. Then everybody released their hands off everybody's legs and we flew all the way down to Saturn.

When we landed there, we saw that there was no Emperor of Saturn and that we were the only ones on that planet. We saw all of the comets come down and all of the people. There were almost a billion people there and that meant a lot of comets. We didn't know what we would do so we stayed there for a few years. Then we discovered that there was a spring in the center of the planet. I was the first person to drink from it.

Then all of the people started drinking it. We saw it as pure water with no impurities. Then centuries passed and then we realized what that water was.

We declared that planet as our hometown from now on. We set up buildings, cities, and houses. We even created our own military base there. After the whole world started seeing the progress that was happening in outer space all of the other continents started coming in too. That left earth alone with no one there. We also had to declare war on the other countries because they wanted the spring water and the shooting range space (the rings of Saturn).

In the end, Saturn came out victorious in becoming the first civilization to ever to be in space.
